

Weight increases with the number of observations
(faster if proportions are more extreme)

Range of weights available at various proportions
(higher if the number of observations higher)

